“Stranger Danger”

Fort Pierce Police unites with Jackson Hewitt to protect local children

FORT PIERCE – As part of an effort to help keep children from becoming missing and exploited, the Fort Pierce Police and Jackson Hewitt have joined forces in this battle.

From 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, March 31st, Officer James Cozine will be on hand at the Jackson Hewitt, located in the K-Mart Plaza at the corner of U.S. 1 and Virginia Avenue, to compile profiles complete with photo identifications and fingerprints for children.

To support the department’s “Stranger Danger” program, Jackson Hewitt has pledged a major portion of its tax preparation fees collected during the event, to help further the department’s mission to lower the risk of our children become victims of abductions and exploitation. In addition, Jackson Hewitt is also offering a 50% discount to individuals, who have not yet completed their tax return.
